

for the patients from the latter county which is assessed for one per cent of the cost of operation. The sanatorium is primarily a teaching institution and only those patients who are willing to cooperate toward this purpose are permitted to remain.

The Emergency Hospital.—The Emergency Hospital is supported through the city tax funds of Stockton. Anyone is eligible for first aid and in many minor cases care may be given by one of the three nurses employed. Certain badly injured patients may remain in the hospital overnight, nine beds being provided for this purpose. Other facilities include an operating room and two clinic rooms, and space is also provided for the dental clinic operated by the county health organization. The medical staff includes one permanent part-time member who appoints other practicing physicians in Stockton to serve without pay. Each member of the staff is nominally on call for six hours per day, the permanent member being called for serious cases or when no other member of the staff is available.

It was reported that the Emergency Hospital physicians after giving emergency treatment accept cases for private care only upon request of injured persons. However, during the interviews, certain physicians complained that the hospital did not call them in for their own patients and also criticized the lack of rotation in the emergency staff.

No fee is charged for the emergency service. During the year, care was given to 6,786 surgical cases and to 550 medical cases, and, in addition 3,703 dressings were applied. Of the surgical cases, 1,079 were due to industrial accidents for which no charge was made against the insurance companies. The total cost of operating the Emergency Hospital was $15,635.

CLINICS—AND CLINICS *

A NEW (?) METHOD FOR INAUGURATING CLINICS

California Osteopathic Association
Office of the Legislative Director

400 Black Building
Los Angeles

February 8, 1932.

Dear Pastor:

In every community many children are now suffering for lack of proper health care because their parents are unable to pay for the services of a physician. To help meet this condition the Los Angeles Osteopathic Society, a division of the California Osteopathic Society, is ready to establish a number of free Child Welfare clinics. If your church has a room which could be used a few hours a week for this purpose, the Society will furnish competent physicians to conduct such a clinic. Diagnosis, treatment, health advice, and scientific instruction on diet will be included in the free service to be rendered.

We are ready to cooperate with you in this much-needed work. If you will fill out and mail the enclosed blank, we shall be glad to make an appointment with you for a conference at which the necessary details can be arranged. Or if you prefer, a telephone call to Tucker 9547 will serve the same purpose.

Yours very truly,

CALIFORNIA OSTEOPATHIC ASSOCIATION.

A BLOOD TRANSFUSION—WITH AN EXPLANATION OF ITS POWER

The Los Angeles Times of March 7 recently gave considerable space to a write-up of a blood transfusion to a California Evangelist of the gentler sex, whose name and experiences in recent years have occupied much space in some of the lay press. The blood transfusion was administered by two doctors whose names are found printed in the list of osteopathic licentiates, published by the Board of Osteopathic Examiners.

Some excerpts from the newspaper item referred to are here reprinted:

"_____, pastor of _____ Temple, was resting in the _____ Hospital last night after having received a transfusion of blood yesterday to correct a condition described by her physicians as secondary anemia, an ailment resulting from complete exhaustion.

The Evangelist, who collapsed in the temple last Sunday while attempting to deliver her fifteenth sermon during the course of a week, received a pint of blood in the transfusion, Doctors _____ and _____, her physicians, said. . . .

"Dr. _____ said the Evangelist was 'reacting normally to the transfusion' and will be able to leave the hospital tomorrow and appear at services in the temple Sunday, provided unforeseen developments do not occur.

"Mrs. _____ had the alternative of the blood transfusion or an enforced rest of at least a year,' the physician reported. 'She could not have continued with her work without one or the other. She had reached the point of complete physical exhaustion, from which she could only recover by either building fresh blood or acquiring some by transfusion. Should she fail to recover completely as a result of the transfusion, a rest of more than a year will be required.' . . .

"During Tuesday night hundreds of the Evangelist's followers prayed in watches at the temple for her recovery. Yesterday morning, while the transfusion was in progress, the entire congregation offered prayers for the operation's success, the majority going to _____ Temple to pray."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO*

EXCERPTS FROM OUR STATE MEDICAL JOURNAL

Volume V, No. 4, April 1907

From some editorial notes:

We Aid Quackery.—Especially to those few physicians who have reproached the state journal for the amount of space it has devoted to the condemnation of nostrums, do we commend a careful reading of an address by Mr. Bok of the Ladies' Home Journal, reprinted in this issue from the Journal of the American Medical Association. In the last five years we have printed thousands of words, pages and pages of matter, condemning the ignorance of the physician who will prescribe for his patient a substance of unknown composition. And yet some of our members have continued on their criminally ignorant course. We should like to know how any physician can excuse himself for using _____, for instance, one of the rankest of nostrum frauds which, with the passage of the Food and Drugs Act, stopped using acetanilid and substituted therefor phenacetin! . . .

Opsonic Theory.—The field opened by the opsonic theory of Wright and others is so vast as almost to paralyze speculation. As the technique required is somewhat complex and delicate, actual results obtained by following out the natural lines of the theory must necessarily come to us but slowly. While much of the medical press of the world has given considerable space to discussing the opsonic theory and its possibilities, we have thus far avoided the discussions and have awaited further developments. Euthusiasts here and there have claimed unlimited possibilities and almost unlimited probable cures as the natural sequence of the development of Wright's work and theory; but it remains to be seen how elaborate and
